THE ALUMNI'S ROLE IN LOYOLA'S EVOLUTION

Bill Pelton speaks out

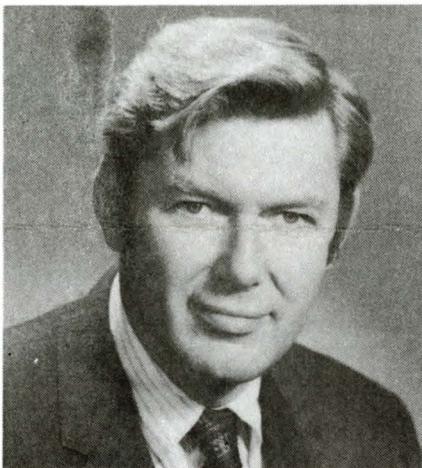

The question was, "What's involved?" The answer was, "Two or three hours, one night a month." And that is how Bill Wilson sandbagged me and I became a Director of the Loyola of Montreal Alumni Association Inc.

He was lying unconsciously of course. His "one night a month" accounted only for the meetings at which plans are made for the projects that really take the time and effort. Bill can be forgiven, however, because there are no volunteers for the offices of an alumni association and one does not want to discourage potential recruits with a too accurate description of what will be required of them. What really mattered was his conviction that this undertaking is worthwhile, and now that I have been involved for a year, I agree with him. We alumni have a role to play in the evolution of Loyola. Our job may be poorly defined, it is certainly undeveloped, but we can contribute and our contribution is wanted and needed.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION GOALS

Let us understand clearly that our Association does not exist just to raise money or throw oyster parties. Nor is its purpose to preserve a cherished past. Our goal is to assist Loyola and the constituency it serves—the English speaking community of our province. We view Loyola as it is, not as it was. What it was, is how you remember it. What it is, is a very important component of our educational system and as such it should be of great concern to everyone who lives in Quebec. In matters related to education, a Quebecer, especially if he is English speaking, is either concerned or he is leaving, and even in the latter case he cannot be indifferent.

Nonetheless, because such great changes occur in such short periods, it can be difficult for many of us to identify with Loyola. I have had the problem myself. However I do not have any difficulty identifying with my tax bill and since a good part of it goes to education, I want that part to be well spent. I also have children who will soon be in college and I want them to receive the best possible education. I want them to have the option to take or not take courses which have been open to our community for generations. So I am involved, as a citizen, as a taxpayer and as a parent. We all are. However, for one reason or another many of us don't feel any involvement, perhaps because we don't appreciate how substantial is Loyola's position.

THE LOYOLA ESTABLISHMENT

It exists to serve primarily the English-speaking element of Montreal. Is it fulfilling this function? Judge for yourself. Loyola has over 4,000 full time day students. Over 5,000 are enrolled in the night division. It has a faculty close to three hundred. It has faculties of Arts, Science, Engineering and Commerce. It offers honours courses in more than twenty disciplines. It conducts an extremely varied and well-organized athletic program for both male and female students. Facilities to support a rich and diverse program of cultural activities are available. Consider its location in west end Montreal. Consider its land holdings. Consider the extent of its physical plant. Consider that its operating costs per student are lower than any comparable school in Quebec. Consider that it still offers programs that are not available elsewhere. Consider all these things, and you must feel that Loyola is important, and that it serves its people well.

Statement from the President,

VERY REVEREND

PATRICK G. MALONE, S.J.

As Alumni, students, faculty and staff of Loyola know, a committee composed of members of the college's Board of Trustees is pursuing studies with regard to an association with one of the other universities of the province. A final solution will be taken by the Board of Trustees only after thorough review, prolonged discussion and negotiation, and with the full knowledge of the community of Loyola.

A front page article of September 21 erred in most major points:

The decision of an association between Loyola and Sir George is still tentative.

There has not been yet any decision between Loyola and Sir George regarding disposition of faculty structures.

Loyola's fee structure is only slightly higher than that of Sir George Williams and is lower than that of McGill University.

I should like to add that should Loyola's discussions with Sir George result in proposals for an association which both structures would find beneficial, both the Loyola and Sir George Williams communities will be presented with fullest information on all aspects of any change of status.

Also, until some permanent settlement for the future of Loyola is made, the government has given assurances that suitable arrangements with regard to the granting of degrees from Loyola, will be continued.

PRESERVATION OF ESSENCE OF LOYOLA.

Many changes lie ahead and one can only speculate on what forms they will take. Loyola as a separate entity may well disappear. That may be regrettable but inevitable. What should concern us is not the name, not the autonomy, but the traditions, the values, the standards, the educational opportunities that are the essence of Loyola. Serving this end is what I view as the purpose of the Alumni Association. Our efforts could be futile—but they are not frivolous.

ALUMNI REUNION

the '29ers big bash

Backslapping and reminiscing were the order of the day for Loyola's class of '29 Saturday, September 25th, when 21 of the class got together in a downtown Montreal hotel.

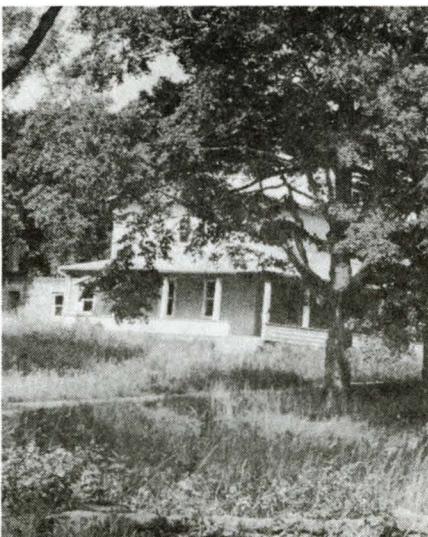

The jovial reunion brought few long lost friends together, as most of the '29ers present had met last year, and the year before, and the year before that as well. In fact, the class of '29 has one of the highest reunion records of Loyola alumni. Over the past few years they have met in Montreal annually, and before that the gaps between reunions were never great.

THE SPIRIT OF '29

This year, as in the past, those present at the reception and following dinner, were not from Montreal only: Amaury Gomez came up from New York City, Reverend Frederick Elliott S. J. from Guelph, Reverend Lionel Stanford S. J. from Granby, and Harold Quinn, who has organised the reunion for several years, arrived from Toronto where he has lived since the mid 40s.

The rest of the 21 present, all from Montreal, were: Reverend Gerald Britt, Douglas and Herbert Gloutney, Jack Hart, Reverend Michael Healy, Gorman Kennedy, Edward La Pierre, James Mullally Q.C., Bobby Munich, Edwin Murphy, Patrick Nolan, William O'Donnell, Thomas O'Rourke, George Pigeon, Reverend John Ryan, Edward Scully and Edmund Seeney.

Why do the '29ers have such a high reunion record? Patrick Nolan, who organised the reunions for several years before Harold Quinn took over the job, puts it down to enthusiasm and interest—and the fact that reunions are very enjoyable occasions.

Loyola Lacolle Centre for Innovative Education

The "Greening" of Loyola

(Eastern Townships Division)

A country home on a twenty-acre site some 45 miles south of the college to be called Loyola Lacolle Centre for Innovative Education has recently been purchased by the College. The site near Lacolle, Quebec, in the Eastern Townships, will be used as an off-campus resource to complement the academic instruction at Loyola.

The purpose of the centre is to provide an off-campus facility to engage in human relations programs, and to provide opportunities for educational innovation not possible through regular academic structures. The long range view, says Dr. Peter Richardson, Chairman of the college's Lacolle Council, is that insights will emerge that will radically improve the quality of educational experience at Loyola.

Programs to Start late October

Programs at the centre will begin in late October and will be co-ordinated by Professor Dick Harman of the Loyola Sociology Department. His responsibilities include the planning and programming of the facilities so that maximum use can be made by students, faculty, and staff. Gordon Meyers, Dean of Students, says that purchase of the centre means that many more programs can be developed by his Department of Student Services.

Increased Student enrolment

Despite predictions of the easing off of enrolment in Quebec's English-speaking universities, Loyola of Montreal has a larger full-time student enrolment this year than last. Enrolment in full-time collegial and university programs is 4,025 students, an increase of about four per cent over last year's total.

Reasons cited for the student increase are changes in the curriculum, a free elective system that allows wider choice in course selection and the up-dating of some department programs.
